Fortune, the winner, is a brown cot by Voltigeur out of Fortuna (Fortunatus adm), the property of Capt. Gray. This colt ran once in Ireland as a two-year old, in the Lisburn Nursery handicap of $450, but without success. As a three-year old he appeared first in the Hambledon Plate of $500 at Thirsk, and was literaity howher; he heart trimed up in the Stewards Cup at Goodwood, for which 30 started, and was not among the first; and in the Chesterfield Cup at the same place he did not succeed in getting among the first three. His last appearance as a three-year old was in the Great Eton Handicap at York August meeting, where he was not placed.

THE COURTS.

THE GREAT ERIE WAR.

There were eight motions in the Eric con-scoversy on the Supreme Court Chambers calendar yes-terday. Three of them were postponed till to-day, and the others to the 18th inst. terday. Three of them were postponed till to-day, and the other to the 1sth inst.

The argument for and against the dissolution of the injunctions in the Schell and other early suits in this littleation was continued before Judge Sutheriand yesterday. Mr. O'Conor argued that there was no act of the Legislature authorizing the sale of bonds below par. Other poerer States had authorized such sales. The onlygical for such a power has an argument very indirectly from the statute, forbidding corporations to set up the defense of usary. Mr. O'Conor proceeded to show the occasion for that act, and argued that it gave no authority to the decirins that a corporation could give its bond for 4100 when it received but $70. Mr. O'Conor argued further that no power existed in the corporation to issue these bonds, and that the net of a Legislature of last month did not alter the plaintiff's rights. The Court said that such legislation was most remarkable. Mr. David Dadicy Field replied for the defendants. The manner in which this suit was prosecuted was unexampled. Continuous and persistent stracks on counsel were substituted by the other side for argument. Injunctions were charged on them as having been arreasonably obtained. Three had been obtained by them, five by one Judge, with the exception of one by one Judge. That exception was identical with the Schell injunction, ably obtained. Three had been obtained by them; five by the other side—the three by different Judges; the five by one Judge, with the exception of one by one Judge. That exception was identical with the Schell injunction, and was said by the Judge who granted it to be a matter of courtesy. But they were charged with going into other districts. Why should they not? The law permitted if. He argued that all these suits were brought in common and for a common purpose. Their purpose was to speculate in stocks and prevent the Western connections of Eric.

Mr. Field called attention to the change of theory in regard to corporations, quoting the English law to show its broad scope, much wider than our own New York law. It was better that these great masses of property should be in a corporation than in an individual.

Mr. Field argued against the injunction. He cited the statutes of 1899 and 1947 to show the authority of a rail-road company to make working contracts with other roads. In regard to the contract which the Boston, Harford and Eric Heilroak Co., he quoted authorities to show: 1st, that that Company was not a party to the present action, and as no final remedy affecting its rights could therefore be given, no previsional remedy should be granted; 2d. that the Eric Co. had power to make that contract, since the road named connected with their road at Newburgh; 3d, no allegations had been made in the complaint showing unwike exercise by the Company of its powers. The same general argument was made in relation to the agreement with the Michigan Bouthern and Northern Indiana Lairoad Company, He advanced and argued at considerable length the four following propositions: 1st That the capital was not fixed, even in the sense in which it is ordinarily said a company has a fixed capital. 20, If it were thus fixed, the uniform practical construction of the 2sth section of the railway set autihorned the Indiana Lairoad contains the four of convertible bonds. 3d The construction named was the four of convertible bonds.

A dividend of $10 per share has been made on American Express, payable May 23d. The railway share market opened dull, in sympathy with the weather, but prices were fully maintained, and a slight improvement in prices was made on the entire list. The transactions of the day were unusually light, but there was a fair demand for all the Western stocks. Erie was in good request, and sold at 70. New-York Central was fairly sustained. The transactions in Fort Wayne were moderate at 1051@ 108. Michigan Southern showed more strength, selling at 854. North-Western shares were steady. The Directors of this company were in session to-day, and $1,460; total working expenditure per mile per arranged to make a dividend of 10 per cent on the Common and Preferred stock, payable in kind. Some minor details were not perfected, and they adjourned until Friday, when the dividend day will be announced. This division is made to represent money earned, but used for construction. On the 1st of April the surplus earnings that had accumulated since the last dividend was made on the Preferred stock amounted to $3,250,000 over and above the sinking fund and interest account. The street was deserted at an early hour, and there were few transactions after the last Open Board. 'Impeachment' continues to depress affairs in Wallst., and engagenishts in stock circles are upon the most limited scale, in many cases the dealings being hardly extensive enough to make quotations. The disposition of holders of railway property is to keep their property, upon the theory that the large current traffic and the case in money will after "impeachment" stimulate active speculation and a large advance in prices. A few chronic bears still try to persuade themselves that the railways of 1868 are the same worthless concerns from which they made such a rich harvest in 1857 by selling them short, and continue to sell them in a feeble way; but the majority of operators are ready purchasers, upon the argument that the natural increase of the business of the country has secured to the railway system income, which, managed with reasonable prudence, will yield shareholders as much interest as is obtained from the average of bank shares. It is stated that the New-York Central can make a balance sheet, showing its ability to pay 8 per cent upon a share capital, 30 per cent above its present amount. Governments close strong and active, with a good demand for all classes of 5-20 bonds. There is a great scarcity of small coupon bonds, which are in active demand for shipment. Registered bonds are also scarce, and brokers are obliged to convert coupon bonds to supply orders.
